Silver Queen of Air Ready To Add To Thrilling Adventure.

CROSS PACIFIC NOW

Second Ocean and Third Continent Passengers Will See.

TOKYO, Aug. 20.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin, conqueror of one ocean and two continents, is being prepped today for the conquest of another sea and continent and the completion of its round-the-world flight.

Lodged safely in the giant hangar at a near-by airport the huge dirigible is being gone over carefully by workmen testing the fabric, re-starting the motors and tuning to their hum and searching closely for any weakness which might have developed in the flight across Eurasia.

Thursday morning, Wednesday afternoon by Eastern standard time, barring inclement weather or other unfavorable conditions, the Zeppelin will start on the third lap of its globe-gridding tour, crossing the Pacific north of the Hawaiian islands and down the coast to Los Angeles, a distance of 5470 miles.

Passengers and crew were refreshed today after a good sleep in Tokyo hotels and spent the greater part of the day sight-seeing and being entertained by Japanese hosts.

Pension Rolls Are Being Purged

Names of 60 Stricken As Board Buckles Down To Business.

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 20.—The State Pension Board yesterday removed names of approximately 60 pensioners from the Confederate pension rolls. About 50 of those whose names were removed were found by the board to be non-residents and others had not furnished sufficient proof of service or were found to be holders of property in excess of the value allowed pensioners.

The board will meet again Monday to continue its work of purging the pension roll in accordance with an act of the 1929 legislature.

Mrs. Willebrandt Is Sued For Libel

Gus Nations, Ex-Dry Chief at St. Louis, Seeks $1,000,000.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general of the United States and the Current News Features Company, were made defendants in a $1,000,000 libel suit filed here yesterday by Gus O. Nations, former chief of the St. Louis federal prohibition enforcement unit.

Nations, under garnishment proceedings, also tied up funds due Mrs. Willebrandt from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which has published her articles on prohibition and its enforcement.

Nations charges that the articles were intended to make the public understand that he, while acting as federal prohibition agent in St. Louis, had been guilty of official misconduct in connection with the Griesedick brewery case.

The petition, signed by Nations as his own attorney, refers to an excellent reputation enjoyed during the tenure of his office from January 3, 1922 to June 30, 1921, and during the years following until publication of the articles by Mrs. Willebrandt, the first one of which describes how Mrs. Willebrandt had to fight the Anti-Saloon League to remove a popular agent, which the plaintiff, believes referred to his activities and experiences.

Wounded Beauty

Here are Virginia Amaral, 17-year-old Spanish beauty, who was wounded, and John Burnett, lawyer, both of Elizabethton, Tenn., who died after a mystery shooting at Burnett's summer camp near Elizabethton. Although a coroner's jury adjudged Burnett's death a suicide, authorities are investigating. Miss Amaral was a ward of Burnett.

Local Guard Unit In Training Camp

Officers Say Company In Excellent Shape and Seeking Honors.

Company "A," 153 Infantry, local unit of the Arkansas National Guard, is among the other units composing the guard now taking two weeks training at Camp Pike.

The company left Sunday morning for the camp, practically all the men and officers going up on a special train but some few of them driving through in privately owned cars.

Monday was the first full day in camp, drill being the main order of business, and today the companies start taking turns at the rifle range. "A" Company is going after athletic honors as well as seeking distinction in the various branches of military work in which they participate.

Youth Killed In Watermelon Patch

Visited Patch and Killed By Farmer Who Was On Guard.

MEMPHIS, August 20.—(AP)—Robert O'Brien, 16, son of a prominent Birmingham manufacturer, died early today from shotgun wounds received while in a raid on a farmer's melon patch.

The youth, with two men, had gone into the patch. The owner, F. A. Burnett, 40, told officers that he had been on guard last night, armed with a shotgun loaded with buckshot. He said he fired when he saw the three making off with melons.

Burnett told officers that he thought he was too far away to kill anyone when he shot and wanted only to pepper the thieves or give them a good scare. He has not been arrested.

Thieves Have No Regard for Belongings of King

King Albert of Belgium probably believes he would fare better if he maintained his kingly character by keeping personal guards always at hand. While swimming incognito at the fashionable resort of Mariakerke, thieves rifled his clothes of a gold watch, 500 francs and other values, besides tying his garments in hard knots.

Many Arkansawyers In the Big Cities

More than 10,000 former residents of Arkansas have left their native state for the larger cities. St. Louis seems to be choice of a larger number of them, and has an Arkansas population of 7,911.

Strange to say, Los Angeles ranks second with 7,817 Arkansawyers there are very patriotic to their old home and have organized the Arkansas Association which holds a picnic each year.

Ranking third in the list in Kansas City, with an Arkansas population of over 6,000. Chicago and Detroit have 4,000 former residents and San Antonio, Texas, 2,500.—Exchange.

Boss Cotton Stalk Honors Come Back To Hope, Leaving Magnolia Growers Shrouded In Gloomy Sorrow

Practically everybody in the world will agree that Hope is the golden buckle on the watermelon belt—and those who really know about things stand up manfully and argue that the Hope territory is also better for everything else under the sun, and that in all that wide expanse from Petit Jean to the Red there's nothing to compare with old Hempstead.

Not long since Star carried a brief story about a cotton stalk, fully fruited, grown by Mr. Wright, of the Rocky Mount community. Up jumps Magnolia, jealous of the productivity of her soil, and lays us in the shade by producing a stalk load with ninety-odd bolls and forms. Two stalks, to be exact, either of which put ours to blush for feeble fruitage.

Now then, with the aid and assistance of Ruffin White, we'll do a little shade-laying ourselves. For this morning Mr. White advises that on his blackland farm, four

Pantages Hearing Delayed By Court

Showman's Formal Plea Will Be Entered Thursday.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20.—A three day delay was granted Alexander Pantages, multimillionaire theatre owner, Monday when he was arraigned in superior court on charges that he attacked Elmer Pringle, 17-year-old co-ed and dancer.

He was given until Thursday by Judge William T. Aggeler to enter his formal plea. The state made no objection.

The crowd, which filled the courtroom and nearby corridors, was afforded only a brief glimpse of Pantages during the short session. The accused showman kept his glances averted as he made his way through the crowd, accompanied by his two sons, Rodney and Lloyd.

Immediately after Pantages had taken his place at the counsel table, his case was called and he was informed that he was charged with two counts alleging attacks. His attorneys waived reading of information sent up from the municipal court which held him for trial, and asked for additional time in which to plead.

The district attorney's office was expected to use the three days to investigate further the deposition of a 16-year-old former usherette in the Pantages theatre, who said she fled an attempted attack by the wealthy man. The state was said to be in possession of depositions from theatre employees that Pantages ordered them to testify falsely in his behalf.

Wait 20 Years To Go On Fishing Expedition

A two week's fishing trip is hardly an event for which to plan for 20 years, but seven Princeton graduates have been looking forward to such a vacation that long. Among them were President John Stuart of the Quaker Oats Co. of Chicago, President H. J. Cochran of the Bankers Trust Co. of New York and five other of the class of 1909, who recently enjoyed their long deferred outing in Maine.

Wichita Commission Refuses to Pay Attention to Myra McHenry

The aged reformer was there in the interests of an ordinance to prohibit the "bare-leg" fad. She described herself as "awful" when she had doffed her hose to set at rest for ever any commissioner's notion that the bare leg is attractive.

It is humiliating for me to appear before you this way," Myra said, as she made morning gestures among flies with the chicken wire sweater. "But you see how awful it looks."

The commissioner was fuming out. "Just a minute," Mrs. McHenry cried, "I came here to address you in bare legs, to show you how it looks." The commissioners had seen. But they had talked of soft water plants and were going away without talking of bare legs. They were not even interested, apparently, in letters from the devil's folk and from old's folks. They left Myra standing there, a picture of resentment, but not of defeat.

Myra had other things to say, but the commissioners were deaf to her. She carried a large fly "swatter," and it repeatedly became entangled in the ample folds of her dress, making oratory hard.

Death Penalty Is Passed and Snook Is In Death Cell

Motion for New Trial Is Overruled and Sentence Passed.

DEFENSE SEEK DELAY

Court Sets November 29 As Date for Electrocution of Killer.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, August 20.—(AP)—Dr. J. H. Snook was today sentenced to be electrocuted on November 29 for the killing of his co-ed sweetheart, Theora K. Hix, by Judge H. L. Scarlett after a motion for a new trial had been overruled.

Snook was immediately taken from the court room, placed in an auto and rushed to the state penitentiary where he was placed in a cell in death row.

Judge Scarlett passed the sentence after he had given the defense an extra day in which to produce affidavits in support of their motion for a new trial that one or more of the jurors had been prejudiced when sworn for service. E. O. Ricketts, of defense counsel, this morning asked the court for additional time, saying the affidavits were not yet at hand. This being denied, he announced he would not argue the motion filed. Whereupon the court overruled the motion and passed sentence.

Boy's Death Cause of Peculiar Suit

Lad Was Killed When Hit By Batted Ball In Eldorado Park.

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 20.—Death of 14-year-old Calvin Dykes of El Dorado as the result of being struck on the head by a baseball was the basis of a suit filed yesterday in Second Division Circuit court by his father, J. D. Dyke, as administrator of the victim's estate against the Lion Oil El Dorado Baseball Club. The case was settled simultaneously with the granting of a consent judgment for $350 by Judge Mann. Damages of $1,500 were asked in the complaint.

It was alleged that the youth, after paying the admission price to attend a baseball game in El Dorado between the Lion Oil and the Monroe teams of the Cotton Belt League August 10, went onto the playing field while the teams were practicing. A foul ball struck him on the head, fracturing the skull, it was said. He died the following day. Surviving the boy are his parents, a brother and a sister.

Seek New Speed Record On River

To Make Effort To Better Mark Set By Bogie In Up-River Run.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 20.—(AP)—An outboard motorboat speed record for the Mississippi river run from New Orleans to St. Louis will be attempted, starting at 5 a. m. tomorrow, when S. J. Giannelli and B. E. Spencer of Baton Rouge will shove off for the up-river run. Plans for a race between the Louisiana boat and that of Charles Schokmiller and Arthur Saupeberg of St. Louis were abandoned today when the St. Louis boat failed to arrive by rail. The Mossourians, however, said they would follow as soon as their boat arrived.

The Baton Rouge boat expects to make the run in 65 hours. The run was made a month ago by the Memphis (Tenn.) speedboat, Bogie, which covered the course in 87 hours, 31 minutes.

Fifty years ago the steam packet Robert E. Lee defeated the Natchez in a race over the same course.

Death Thrusts Head Into Woman's First Air Derby

Swiss Fliers Due To Arrive Today

If No Accident, Thought They Will Make Goal Late Tuesday.

(By the Associated Press) The Swiss fliers, sighted in intervals during the first 24 hours of their westward crossing over the Atlantic, have been shrouded in silence since leaving the Azores.

The pilots, Oskar Kassar and Kurt Krusscher, estimated they could make the hop by late Tuesday, with a possible stop at Halifax for fuel.

Since leaving the northern shores nothing has been reported of them, though several ships are steaming along the line they are expected to travel.

Conway-Menifee Road Stays Open

Not To Be Closed Until Detour for Distance Completed.

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 20.—(AP)—The state highway commission announced today that Highway No. 64, Little Rock to Fort Smith, would not be closed between Conway and Menifee for several weeks or until a detour is provided.

The highway is to be surfaced between Conway and Menifee but Commission Chairman Blackwood announced this morning that the work would not start until the detour had been completed.

The Southwest Arkansas Farm

The following is an excerpt from "The Farm Credit Situation in Southwestern Arkansas," University of Arkansas bulletin No. 237, prepared by B. M. Gile, which has just been received in Hope. The bulletin, which may be obtained free by writing Dean Dan T. Gray, College of Agriculture, Fayetteville, Ark., shows that the Hope-Magnolia district has probably made the greatest progress toward diversification of any cotton section in Arkansas. The Star is publishing an excerpt from the bulletin every day.

Density of Population Southwestern Arkansas on the basis of total area, it will be noted, is not densely populated as compared with some other states. The average population per square mile for the six counties in 1920 was 36 as compared with an average of 43 for the state of Iowa. The population per square mile in 1890 was only 22. The reason for this on the basis of total area is that only about 57 per cent of the land area is in farms. In 1920 only 49 per cent of farm land was in crops. Comparing with Iowa again, 91 per cent of the total area of that state is in farms and 66 per cent of the farm land is in crops.

On the basis of farm production per square mile of farm land and the district is relatively densely populated. The average per square mile of farm land in 1925 was 42 as compared with 18 in rural Iowa. This indicates that labor in this district is applied about three times as intensively to land a sin Iowa. While labor is applied to the crop land more intensively, capital per worker is used less intensively.

Two Kinds of Farming There are two distinct types of farming. The plantation type is found almost exclusively in the Crook In Jail Of All Places!

AMARILLO, Tex., Aug. 15.—When a man robs and goes to jail—that is not news.

But when a man goes to jail and then is robbed—that is news.

"I've been robbed, Chief," "Robbed! Whereabouts?" "In your jail."

Jailed here recently on charges of drunkenness, an unnamed man woke up in his cell cot to find his 17-jewel watch gone from his wrist.

He demanded police protection from Chief of Police W. R. McDowell while in the later's jail.

Detectives searched the jail inmates and found it on the wrist of another prisoner.

Tourists Prepare So Invade Canada

Urged to Carry Coats and Wraps for Cool Weather In Canada.

Either a winter suit or a light overcoat or wrap will be required by members of the third South Arkansas Industrial and Dairying tour, which leaves Camden at 4:35 tomorrow afternoon for northern cities and Canada, it was said yesterday by Luther Ellison, secretary. Part of the tour will be a steamer trip of 100 miles across Lake Toronto.

Although the tour is sponsored by the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce, of which Mr. Ellison is secretary, it is open to any one living in Arkansas, Mr. Ellison said, and reservations may be made up until noon tomorrow.

Reservations have been made by persons from 22 cities and towns of Arkansas, including 19 women. Business features of the tour will include study of dairying activity in the northern states and Canada, and inspection of big industrial plants.

Three Hope residents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Greene, and R. R. Cornelius, will be passengers on the tour.

The Star will be represented by Grover A. Zinn, El Dorado newspaper man who is being sent jointly by several daily papers, and whose dispatches will appear every afternoon in The Star.

Woman Pilot From West Coast Dead Following Crash

Body Found 100 Yards From Wreckage of Plane.

PARACHUTE FAILED

Rip Cord Had Been Pulled But Chute Failed To Open.

PHOENIX, Ariz., August 20.—(AP)—Death thrust itself into the women's national air derby today with the finding of the body and the wrecked plane of Miss Marvel Grossin, 25, one of the entrants, in the wilds of Western Arizona.

The body and wreckage told a story of what had happened. Miss Grossin, of San Diego, holder of the women's altitude record of 23,996 feet was with other contestants flying from San Bernardino to Phoenix yesterday. The body and plane were lying some distance apart, the body broken and crushed and the plane badly damaged. Indicated that Miss Grossin's death was instantaneous.

Around the woman's body was draped the parachute she had worn. The rip cord had been pulled but the chute failed to open. The distance from plane to her body indicated that she had jumped when the plane got out of control.

Eye witnesses to the accident said she went into a tail spin diving from an altitude of approximately 1,000.

Rural Visitor To City Finds It Disappointing

MARYLAND, Mo., Aug. 20.—City life's a flop, a visitor decided here.

When "in town," farmers usually visit on the street, often go to the drug store, may have business at the court house.

When the endgame on a truck came loose Mrs. Cow tried to do all these. The drug store however would not admit her, a chat with a little girl in a motor car was all one-sided, and the court house was closed.

In search of an education, the cow was arrested on her way to the high school, was returned to her owner by night officer, William Trullinger.

Manacled Prisoner Outruns Officers

Leaps From Auto and Leaves Sheriff and Deputies Flat.

Sheriff Miller, of Lafayette county, and his deputies, recently raided a still over in the river bottoms and captured a man, Joe Kline by name, alleged to be operator of the joy-juice plant.

When the officers had destroyed all paraphernalia they couldn't take to Lewisville with them, Kline was handcuffed and placed in a car with the officers and a start made to the county's stony lonesome. The car was slipping merrily along at about 35 miles per hour when Kline decided he didn't want to go to Lewisville anyway, so he quit the car.

The officers gave chase, but each time they ordered the fugitive to halt or fire a shot to scare him into stopping he merely lengthened his stride a bit, got a little closer to old Mother Earth and started running all over again.

After a futile chase the officers gave up, confident the fugitive would cross Louisiana territory before nightfall if he kept up the rate of speed he was traveling when last seen.

Home Rule for the Cities

THE decision of Chancellor Futrell at Jonesboro yesterday in which it was held that the act granting the Arkansas Railroad Commission authority to regulate ice companies, was unconstitutional, will go to the supreme court for final judgment.

It is just as well, perhaps, that the issue be brought to a head. The ice regulation act has been highly unpopular, and even though the supreme court should sustain it, a repealer is almost certain to be sought in the next legislature.

With the expressed desire of the ice companies to stabilize a business that has been highly chaotic, this newspaper is in sympathy; but the trend of Arkansas utility regulation is away from, rather than toward, the railroad commission. Every utility bill proposing to place authority over light and water companies with the railroad commission, has been soundly beaten. There is no reason to suppose that the ice bill, now that its true scope has become known, will escape a similar fate.

American states have tried all kinds of public service and corporation commissions, aiming to make the state the unit of control for utilities—but most of them are returning to the original unit, the city council of the community in which the utility operates.

Here in Hope we are fortunate to have a municipal electric plant. But in other Arkansas cities where private power companies operate—Camden, Magnolia, El Dorado—the city council is the rate-making authority. Not all is peaceful, of course, between the city council and the company; but at least the city is the nominal law-maker.

We see no reason why Arkansas cities shouldn't be able to afford a square deal for the ice companies. The companies haven't been treated altogether fair in the past. Ruinous and unscrupulous competition has been admitted in the ice-making field without regard to sound business or public service. The same rule that makes citizens feel that one strong utility company is worth more than two indifferent ones, ought to apply to the ice industry. It has been the lack of that which has driven the ice-manufacturing firms to the legislature and railroad commission.

A better system that railroad commission regulation, however, would be the establishment of a policy by the cities to hold intact a single ice utility, and then regulate the rates charged by that utility. Under such a system, utility capital and the city council might get together.

Meanwhile, the cities of Arkansas will continue to demand and get home rule for community business.

Getting Together At Mount Sequoyah.

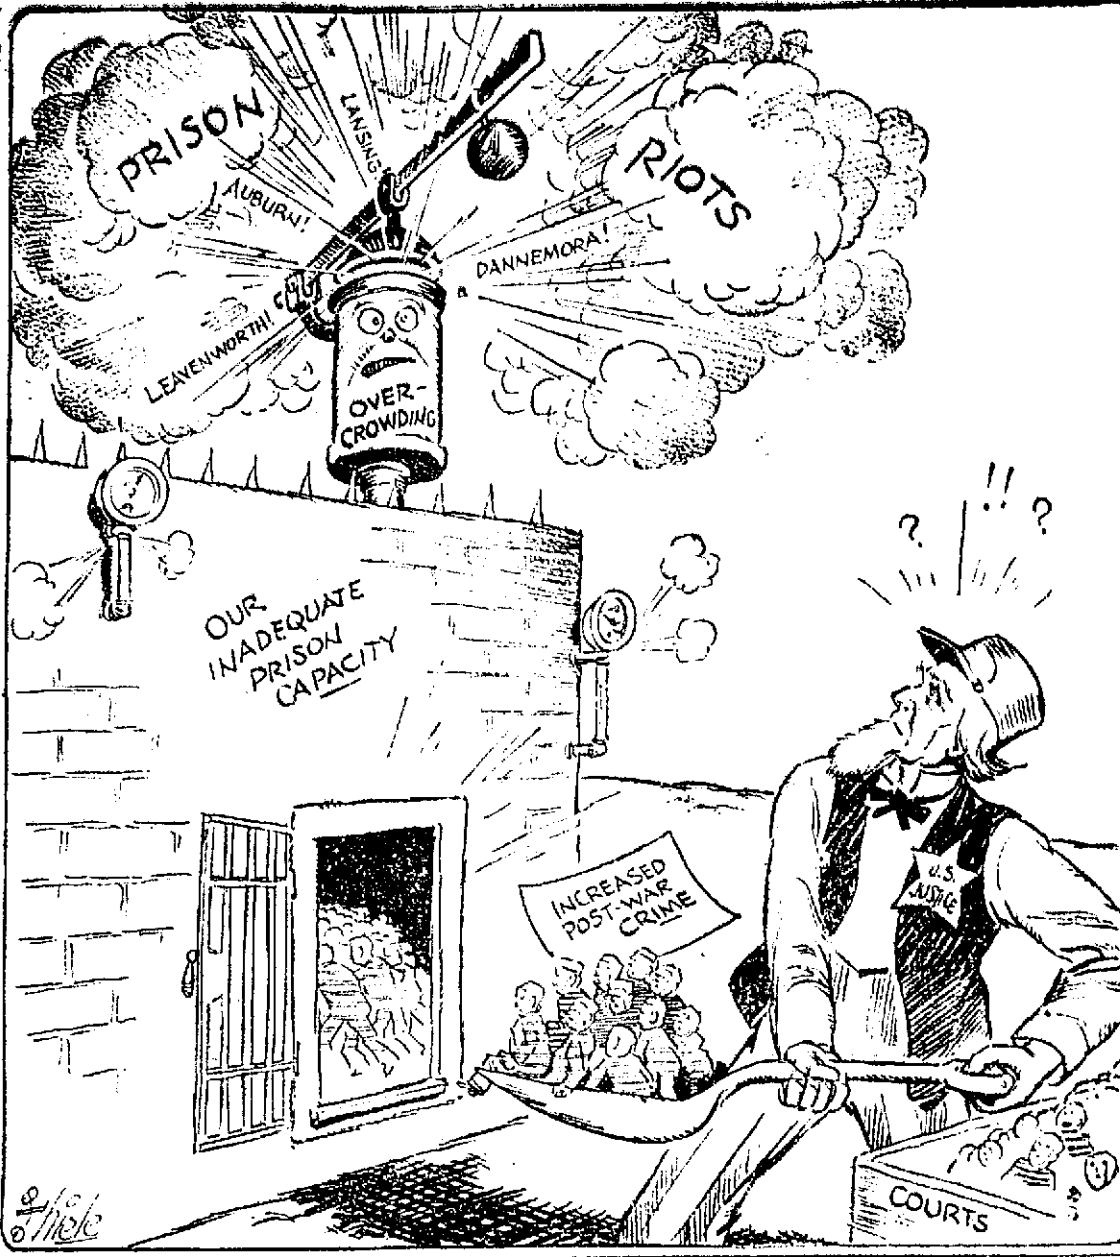

IN a leading editorial devoted to the Popular Science Monthly article on "Beating the Evolution Law," the Baptist Advance sideswipes the Gazette, which reproduced the salient passages of this article. The purpose of the Gazette was to inform the Arkansas public of the result of an investigation made in this state, and in Tennessee, by Orland Kay Armstrong, just as we should tell the result of an investigation that might be made of the Arkansas income tax or of our prison system or some other matter.

But we pass from the Baptist Advance's evolution law editorial to mention another leading article in that paper. It deals with the conference held on three days of last week at the Methodist Assembly grounds at Mount Sequoyah near Fayetteville. The discussions were concerned with such problems as prohibition, Sunday observance and world peace, and while the conference was held under the auspices of the Southern Methodist Board of Temperance and Social Service the Baptist Advance notes that there was "nothing denominational" about the gathering, and that people of all denominations and no denominations were invited to come, and did come, to go away with clearer ideas and deeper convictions on the subjects discussed.

The Arkansas Methodist also referred to this aspect of the gathering at Mount Sequoyah, and noted that on the second day of the conference the Rev. Dr. J. S. Compere, editor of the Baptist Advance, showed himself not merely a good presiding officer, but "an able expounder of the Scriptures" and "a brother beloved."

It is a fine and encouraging thing when men and women devoted to the moral and spiritual welfare of our state can disregard any denominational differences that separate them into groups, and get together as they did on this occasion to take counsel and seek inspiration together.—Arkansas Gazette.

The Safety Valve Pops Off

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON — Either the world is getting naughtier or Uncle Sam is getting much more particular.

Or, again, possibly the Postoffice Department and the Customs Bureau are merely envious in friendly rivalry to see which can censor the most literary material and get away with it.

At any rate, these two departments have been extraordinarily active within the last year in their efforts not only to keep from the citizenry such printed matter as might conceivably affect the morals of adolescents but also that which might put political or economic ideas in our heads.

In the latter type of censorship, the Postoffice Department is able to get a large edge on its rival. For the postal laws, with a little stretching of the imagination, allow it to bar from the mails books, pamphlets or envelopes which are regarded as disrespectful to constituted authority. They also cover cases of obscenity.

The customs laws, however, merely bar from the country printed matter which customs officials may decide to be obscene.

Of course many university professors and several senators, most recently Bronson Cutting of New Mexico, have protested against any extension of the customs censorship powers, but the customs boys on the wharves will doubtless ask how anyone expects them to tie the postoffice censorship score while working under such terrific handicaps.

Nevertheless, a very short summary herewith will show that the customs service has been holding up its end and that these two arms of government between them have lately broken all previous records for banning books and whatnot from the mails and from the country at large.

The postoffice, most lately, has declared unmailable 5000 pamphlets on the Mooney-Billings case because the envelopes said such things as "a terrible indictment," "justice California style," "the horror of 13 years imprisonment" and "Tom Mooney Frameup."

Almost simultaneously customs collectors began to seize incoming copies of "Uncle Sam," a book from India purporting to expose vice and corruption in America. They call it "obscene." Efforts were made to explain to the customs service that even vilification of American life didn't constitute "obscenity." The point was finally perceived and the book comes in.

The last major exploit of the postoffice solicitor, Horace J. Donnelly, was the trial of Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett in New York for mailing her widely recommended sex hygiene pamphlet. One of Mr. Donnelly's assistants had acted as an agent provocateur by writing to Mrs. Dennett for a copy. When she was kind enough to comply she was pinched by the postoffice inspectors. Donnelly also ruled "The Well of Loneliness" was unfit for mailing and there is still a feverish demand for it at every circulating library in the country. Two or three years ago he kicked an issue of the American Mercury from the mails because it contained the article "Hatrack." Copies of the magazine promptly advanced to a premium. From time to time he pounces on some college funny magazine for printing a naughty picture, invariably causing an insatiable news stand demand.

Code of Ethics for Drug Stores

Hope Members Adopt Code of State Drug-gists' Association.

The code of ethics of the Arkansas Pharmaceutical association has been adopted by five local drug-stores with the statement that "as a rule the druggists of this state are trying to live up to this standard." The signers are: Briant's drugstore, John S. Gibson Drug company, John P. Cox Drug Company, Ward & Son, and Moreland's drugstore.

The code is as follows:
(1) To adopt the word "Service" in its largest and fullest sense, as the watchword of my business, striving at all times to apply it to my dealings with my patrons, my competitor and my employees.

(2) To remember that human lives depend upon my loyalty and honor in compounding medicines and that the good name of my profession is jeopardized by my failure to observe the strictest care and precision.

(3) To recognize a reputation for honesty, integrity and ethical conduct as the highest achievement of a pharmacist and to direct all my thought and energy toward achieving such a reputation.

(4) To recognize my patrons as my friends who have placed their dearest possession, health, within my keeping and to serve them as to keep faith and justify this confidence in me.

(5) To exact from my business only a fair and just profit, remembering that the good name of the entire profession of which I am a humble part depends upon my dealing fairly and honorably with all men.

(6) To recognize my duty as a citizen of my city, state and nation and to stand ever ready to perform the full duty of a good citizen by participating in every worthy move, helping every worthy cause and actively supporting every worthy man.

(7) To choose the Golden Rule as my guide in the conduct of my business and personal affairs, to the end that any success which may come to me shall have been fairly earned and shall not have come at the expense of my fellow-men.

(8) To recognize myself as a representative of my profession, remembering that any dishonorable conduct charged to me must also be charged against my profession and that the lowering of my own ideals for pecuniary gain will be reflected in a lowering of the ideals of the entire profession in which I am engaged.

FLY-TOX

DEVELOPED AT MELLON INSTITUTE OF INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH BY REX RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP

Fragrant FLY-TOX spray kills mosquitoes, flies and other insects quickly. Spray rooms freely. FLY-TOX is harmless to people, and will not stain.

A vast army of insects is bred at FLY-TOX laboratories to be released in the FLY-TOX "Chamber of Death" to test and certify the killing qualities of FLY-TOX before it is sold to you.

Sense the bigger thing we are to do;
See it in the clouds;
Hear it in the grass;
Catch the tread of its feet in the watches of the night.
It shall be born in us, and we shall give it forth
A vision that shall light the path, points the way.
A word that shall wing and sing, That shall stay the heart, feed the hungry, heal the helpless,
We dare not break faith with ourselves—
All things are ours and all is possible.

Friends will be glad to know that Rev. Harvey D. Booth, who underwent a major operation last Wednesday at the Julia Chester hospital, is improving rapidly, and will likely be able to leave the hospital in a few days. Mr. Booth is a former Hope boy, and is now located at Newport, where he is pastor of the First Christian church, and hopes to be able to resume his work there before September 1st.

Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Montgomery of Murfreesboro, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Holt and other relatives.

Miss Mary Butler, of Texarkana, is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. McCleughan.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hervey and children who were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Holt and other relatives, have returned to their home in Pine Bluff.

Mrs. M. H. Barlow and her guest, Mrs. A. L. Harris of Atlanta, Ga., are spending a few days visiting with Harry Barlow in DeQueen.

Huber Kennedy of England, Arkansas, and Lamar Cox left this morning for a visit with friends in Dallas, Texas.

Miss Harriet Ann Pritchard entertained most delightfully yesterday afternoon at her home on North Hervey street. The occasion was the celebration of her 13th birthday, and the many lovely gifts she received testified to her popularity among young friends. The house was bright and inviting with a quantity of mid-summer flowers and arranged for 5 tables for bridge, and two tables for Bur. Miss Frances Sue Williams won the bridge favor and Miss Lorena Darnell won the bug favor. After a series of pleasant games, the hostess assisted by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Pritchard served ice cream on kisses.

Mrs. George Crews and son and daughters, Evelyn and Glen are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Waddle.

Misses Evelyn Murph and Laura Porter left Sunday for a visit with Jim Murph in Southern Texas.

Mrs. Alice Russey of Dallas, Texas, is the guest of relatives in the city.

Mrs. R. L. Harris has returned from a visit with friends and relatives in Dallas, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Duckett had as guests Saturday, Mr. Duckett's sisters, Mrs. Lewis Moreland and Mr. Moreland of Idabel, and Mrs. Georgia Whitesides of McCaskill.

Texas Adding To List of 700 Tourist Camps

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 20. —(AP)—More than $2,000,000 is slated to be spent for new tourist camps in Texas during the next two years.

More than 700 camps have been established in the Lone Star state since 1918. The Texas Camp Owners' association, the largest organization of its kind, has a membership of 165 of the state's most modern camps. Their prices range from $1.75 to $5 a day.

Officials estimate that more than $1,250,000 already has been spent to build and equip camps in dozens of state's larger cities.

This is really a fine example of what a club boy can do in feeding and raising a litter of pigs. Oscar plans to have a placard stating exactly what it has cost him to produce these hogs, and this card will be placed on the pen when the animals are on exhibit.

Boys and girls entered in the gold watch corn and cotton contests in this county are urged to see that their records are up in respectful condition at all times. Two disinterested parties should always assist in weighing the crop since this gives adequate proof as to results of the project. The rules must be followed specifically if we expect to really win the prize.

Plans for winter pasture crops should be made at once and the seed secured since there is a general scarcity of reliable seed. This scarcity will result in higher prices. Remember that at least one acre of oats or rye is needed for each cow in milk. The land where the hay crop was grown may well be planted to these winter pasture crops. A few have indicated an individual preference to barley in the place of oats or rye. In such cases the persons should plant barley. This winter crop should be sown the latter part of September if we expect to get the best results from it. Since pasture is the cheapest

The SHINING TALENT

By ELEANOR EARLY © 1929 NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Molly Burnham, with plenty of men at her feet, asks Jack Wells to marry her. Since college days, Molly and Jack have been sweethearts of sorts. But Molly has acquired fame and fortune, with two successful plays on Broadway. And Jack is still marking time in an architect's office. On the heels of a hectic evening, during which two men made love to her, Molly, acting on impulse, grabbed the midnight train to New York and telephoned Jack, in the morning, to have breakfast with her.

Then, out of a clear sky, she asked him to marry her. To her astonishment and pain, he declines, telling her that he cannot be Master Molly Burnham. Crushed and humiliated, Molly returns to Boston, determined to devote her entire life to the care of Little Rita Newton, the child of her dearest friend, who has died.

She vows to write no more plays, but to spend her time compiling tragic poems for a little anthology of mournful love verses. She will also gather the love tragedies of history, and write a beautiful, sad book about the women whose hearts broke for love. She goes to the library for reference books, and is reading when Red Flynn, a reporter, comes to call.

Now Go On With the Story
CHAPTER XXXVI

Red was not a very tactful person. He had moreover a rather disconcerting way of coming bluntly to the point.

"What are you doing?" he asked, surveying the array of books.

"Writing an anthology of tragic loves," she told him.

"What for?"

"Because I want to."

"Good enough," he conceded.

"Speaking of love, do you mind if I ask a personal question, Molly? You won't get sore?"

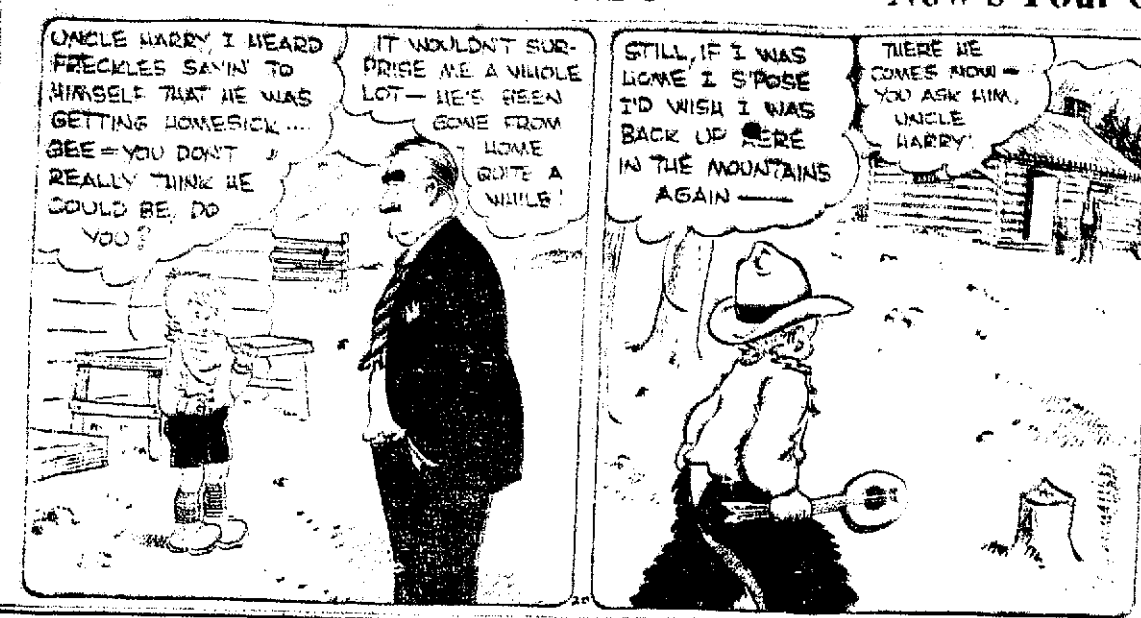

"I might. But go ahead. What difference does it make?"

"Well," he said, "I wouldn't want to hurt your feelings. It's about Jack Wells."

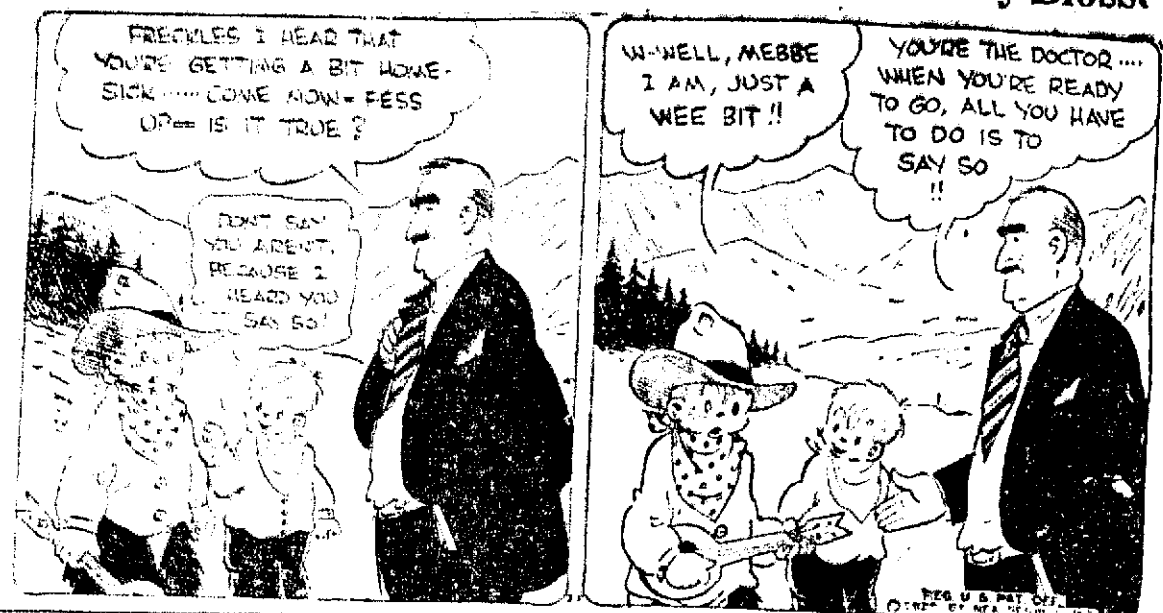

Molly felt suddenly strange. She had felt that way twice before. Once when Rita died. And again when the censors attacked her play. She was afraid that she was going to faint.

"What is it?" she asked, and her voice sounded faint to her, and far

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

Now's Your Chance, Freckles!

"Oh, I don't believe she's really in love with Jack," protested Molly. "Wayle she loves him like a mother."

"Like fun she does."

"Well, anyhow, I'm sure he's not in love with her. Why, it's dreadful, Red, to talk as if Jack were a square man! There's nothing on earth worse than a male gold digger. And Jack's the furthest thing from that I know."

"It looks mighty funny," grumbled Red.

"So do lots of things look funny. Maybe it looked funny when you and I went to St. Petersburg together. For heaven's sake, be charitable!"

Red grinned. He had an encouraging grin.

"Well," he drawled, "I just need to see a slick city fellow do out Nell wrong. I thought maybe I ought to tip you off."

"Don't worry about me," she flushed. "I can take care of myself all right."

"Sure you can," he agreed. "I don't know any girl who can do that little thing any better."

Molly turned the pages of one of her reference books.

"Red dear," she said, "I'm just burning up to get after my tragic lovers. Would you mind awfully if I sent you away? I feel so excitedly like writing tonight, that it's a shame to only sit and talk."

She had grown pale, and there were dark shadows under her eyes. Red was more observing than she knew.

"Pretty hard hit," he decided. "Poor kid. It's a darn shame."

"Come around tomorrow if you like," she was saying, "and I'll have Mary bake you an apple pie."

"Why sure," he said. "But let me make you some coffee before I go, will you? You're looking sort of ragged, old thing. Pep you up a bit, if you're going to be up all night."

"Honestly, Red, I don't feel like it."

"Do you mind if I make some for myself? Have a cup with me like a good girl," he coaxed.

She turned to him gratefully.

"Dear Red! I'll drink coffee or arsenic, if it will make you happy. But don't get feeling sorry for me. Jack and I broke up long ago."

He patted her hand sympathetically.

"It's a hell of a world," he declared.

"Run along and make your coffee," she admonished. "And there are crackers and cheese around somewhere. Bring them in when you come. And see if you can find some guava jelly."

Red rummaged around the pantry and fixed a tray clumsily. Measured his coffee carefully, and the water, and carried the percolator into the drawing room.

Molly lay in her crazy chair, sofa, with her head buried in the pillows, crying her heart out.

"Molly! Molly dear!"

Red set his tray on the floor, and the percolator beside it, and put his arms about her.

"Poor little girl! Want me to smash his head, Molly?"

She shook her head against his chest, laughing through her tears.

"Oh, no, Red, I'm crazy about his head, dear."

"How broken your heart—that's what he's done."

"He's got my heart, nothing!" she contradicted. "I'm just tired, that's all. I'm a poor, weak woman, and I've had a hard day."

"Well, well, 'Atta baby. Poor little girl!"

He pulled her hair awkwardly. And she drew his clumsy fingers to her mouth, and kissed them.

"Dear little girl," he murmured. He slipped his fingers beneath her chin, and lifted her head.

That he kissed her on the mouth. He had never kissed her that way before.

She tried to draw away. But he drew her closer. She trembled for a moment in his embrace.

They were like that when the door opened. And, staring guiltily, they faced Bob.

He was in evening clothes, with an opera hat in his hand. He looked rather like the villain in a play. Faint and disheveled.

He walked toward them unsteadily, with his arm raised.

"You're drunk, old man!" exclaimed Red. "Watch what you're doing!"

"Drunk!" Bob swayed. "Of course I'm drunk. A fellow's got to be drunk or crazy, when he comes to this house."

"Steady!" warned Red. "Don't go steady, me!" cried the intruder. "I saw you! You can't steady me!"

"Don't be an ass," retorted Red coolly. "Anything you saw was quite all right."

Bob hiccupped.

"Molly hasn't been feeling well this evening," Red explained.

"So you kissed her, and made her all better," mimicked Bob. Molly faced him angrily.

"You told me you were on the wagon!" she accused.

"You drive me to drink," retorted Bob.

Red put his arm around her shoulders.

"Don't argue with him, dear. He's not in any condition to talk to."

"You remind me," proclaimed Bob drunkenly, "of a few lines from Othello. Did you ever read Othello, Mr. Flynn?"

Red made no answer.

"Probably you didn't," continued Bob. "So the classical reference is lost upon your lesser intelligence. The lines, however, will convey their own significance. Othello spoke them, when Iago told him that Desdemona had been untrue."

"I had rather be a toad," he said, "and live upon the vapors of a duncheon, than keep a corner in the thing I love for others' use."

Bob sat down, placing his hat on his stick, and holding it tentatively between his hands.

"I come here tonight," he proclaimed, "to ask Molly to marry me. But I have decided I want rather be a toad."

"That's all right by me," offered Red. "Go ahead—be a toad."

"It was wonderful of you to come here like this," Bob protested. Molly.

"You didn't expect me to make any little informal calls," he laughed, "when you gave me that key, did you?"

When Girl Dancer, 16, Accused Pantages

Emma Pongie, 16-year-old vaudeville dancer who charges Alexander Pantages, millionaire Pacific Coast vaudeville magnate, with attacking her when she went to his office to apply for a job, is pictured there as she testifies against him at Los Angeles. Below is a view of the immense crowd that sought entrance to the small courtroom. Several women fainted.

You can depend on advertised products

Advertising is the most powerful searchlight known to business. It focuses the attention of a community or a continent on a particular product. It gives that product the advantages of a widespread test by the buying public. But it cannot persuade that public to buy any article it has tested and found wanting.

Manufacturers and merchants know this. They know also that advertising an unworthy products does only one thing: it brings magnified attention to its deficiencies. Therefore, before they undertake extensive or consistent advertising, they make sure that their product is right.

Consistent advertising is your best assurance of value and worth. It is fair evidence that the advertiser is offering a good product which has been thoroughly tested and approved.

The advertisements in this newspaper have been passed by the highest authority—The buying public.

Arguments Don't Count
Glenon was the manager of the White Sox which caused all the commotion in 1919 and Eddie Collins was the star second baseman on the club. In spite of what happened in the world series against the Cincinnati Reds that year it was a great ball club. Glenon and Collins are now coaches and assistants to Connie Mack and Mack's Philadelphia Athletics are being hailed as one of the great teams of all times. You can't get any place in a controversy about what team was the greatest team of all times. Uncle Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Robins, was the catcher for the old Baltimore Orioles, a team held by many veteran experts as the greatest combination ever assembled. But last year Uncle Robby shocked John McGraw, one of his old teammates, with the statement that the New York Yankees are the greatest of all. Robby is all wet. "I know now that Robby is getting old," McGraw said. Veteran players and experts have their own way of rating a ball club. Glenon and Collins will not compare the A's of 1929 with the other clubs on which they served. And it doesn't have to be recalled that Collins was an important member of the $190,000 infield of the old A's that was broken up in 1914. Connie Mack also will not express a direct opinion on which was the better club, the old bunch of 15 years ago or the squad that seems certain to get into the world series this year.

"Conditions have changed so much in the last 15 years that there is no accurate way for comparison," the veteran leader says. "I wouldn't say that Grove, Walberg and Earnshaw are better than Plank, Coombs and Bender. Perhaps those pitchers of 15 years ago would have had trouble with the white ball they are using now. Perhaps the pitchers on our club today would have been more effective with the ball that was used 15 years ago. We don't know and there is no way of finding out. We can say though that they were two good ball clubs, but I wouldn't attempt to compare them. The style and strategy of baseball has changed. Years ago the sacrifice and the squeeze play for one run was the vogue. Base running was one of the most important factors. But today it is hitting, long hitting for the purpose of getting a flock of runs that counts." They Are Politicians

Victims of Love Tragedy

hitting for the purpose of getting a flock of runs that counts." They Are Politicians

Eddie Collins refuses to discuss the A's as they compare to the old club on which he starred and the White Sox of 1919. That is, he will not commit himself definitely. Neither will the Kid.

But they both agree that Lefty Williams was one of the greatest left-handers of all times. That Eddie Cicotte was a great right-hander, even if he did monkey with the ball. And that Buck Weaver was one of the best third basemen of all times. And that Joe Jackson was the most natural batter that ever hit.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
The summer is over—The college publicity fellows have sent their first batches of copy about football—The weakness of the A's is at third base—They say—The Phillies got Chuck Klein, that home run hitter, for $7500—And the jealous fellows in the National League say he couldn't hit a dozen—If he wasn't hitting in a hand box park—Just to show he was a desirable Johnny Risko is appearing regularly with a new girl in Cleveland—His other one tossed him over—And returned the jewels—And John says he will buy new jewels—And heck the others—With Gyimes and Grantham out in the toughest part of the race the Pittsburghs have given up hope (almost) for the pennant. But Mr. McGraw thinks the Cubs will crack.

Fair Program Most Elaborate In Southwest Arkansas History

Annual Exhibition To Surpass Anything of the Kind Ever Attempted Here—Entertainment Features Varied, Including Out-Door Attractions.

One of the most elaborate fair programs ever seen in Arkansas is being provided for the entertainment of visitors to the annual Southwest Arkansas Fair to be held in this city September 23 to 28 inclusive according to the fair management.

All indications now point to a great array of high class exhibits. With splendid crops assured in this section of the state and a greater interest being manifested by the rural communities, the superintendents of the various departments are predicting a greater variety of exhibits in their respective departments and are recommending that the fair management provide more facilities for handling the exhibits.

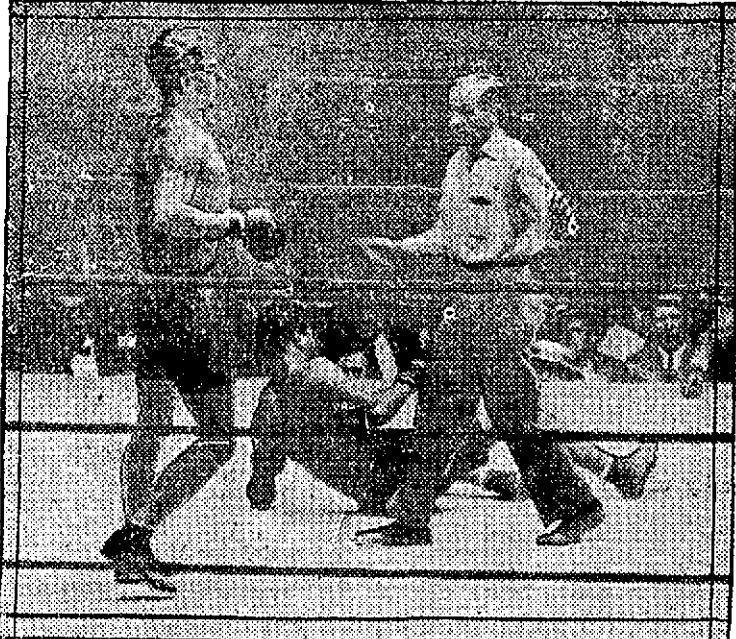

Attractive cash premiums are offered in all departments which include farm and field crops, orchard and truck crops, hay and forage crops, legumes, poultry, livestock, foods and canning, textiles, boys' and girls' club work, school work, floral exhibits and historical exhibits as well as a number of important contests and demonstrations.

The fair management has booked the best program of entertainment and amusement obtainable. Entertainment features include a splendid program of free acts each afternoon and night, a program of hippodrome acts each afternoon and night, an elaborate display of fireworks each night, a racing program daily that will include running races, chariot races, relay races and novelty races and numerous other contests and amusement features. The midway attractions will be furnished by one of America's leading amusement companies and will consist of eight big rides, eighteen shows and other attractions. The first day of the fair has been designated as Aviation Day; the second day as Dairy and Poultry Day; the third day as Music and Homecoming Day. The fair management is arranging appropriate programs for each of these days in addition to the regular daily programs. A number of important aviation events will feature the Aviation Day program. The fair management is negotiating with the holder of one endurance record to appear on this program. The feature of the Educational Day program will be the annual classic between the Ouachita College "Tigers" of Arkadelphia and the A. and M. College "Mulekiders" of Magnolia.

Requirements for superintendent are two years of university training, four years as an executive, and three years connection with flying industries.

Age limits are set at 21 and 55.

Here is the end of Tom Heeney's heavyweight championship hopes. This dramatic photo shows the "Hard Rock" from down under," after his second knockdown, being saved by the referee from further punishment at the mighty hands of six-foot-six Vittorio Compolo. The Argentine giant is being waved back to his corner as the fight at Eddot's Field, Brooklyn, N. Seek Plants for Southwest Dedicated to finding and developing plants which will grow in the arid southwest is the Boyce Thompson Southwestern Arboretum, erected by the millionaire philanthropist, William Boyce Thompson, near Superior, Ariz. This laboratory is situated on a huge flat rock on top of a hill. Here the habits and adaptability of fruits, flowers, shrubs and plants of value to semi-arid countries are studied in an effort to find species beneficial to farmers in that locality.

Roger Babson says what the country needs now is honesty, self control and faith. That's about all it ever needed.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly. Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. James F. Campbell, of 1012 W. Fifth St., Little Rock, Ark., says: "I had bloating after eating. My rheumatism was so bad I could hardly raise my arms. Now I can eat anything and do a good day's work."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation, or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

Woman Mayor's Rule Is Pride of Small Village

MONTGOMERY, La., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Montgomery, a city of 400 population, boasts of its recent growth and its good government. And the power behind that good government is the mayor, a middle-aged woman Methodist preacher who serves for $7.50 monthly salary.

Elected mayor in 1926, Mrs. Lula Wardlaw was re-elected, although she was away when her term expired. During her administration the town completed a street paving program, established a waterworks system, and an electric light system. The town also boasts an ice plant.

The town owes nothing, taxes and licenses paying all expenses of government. In addition to her duties as mayor, Mrs. Wardlaw is pastor of a church near Montgomery, and runs a truck farm.

Being a minister, she has banished questionable street shows, gambling outfits and similar evils. No Sunday baseball games or movies are held at Montgomery.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS . . . By Laufer

WHENEVER a young Jewish boy comes out of the New York Ghetto to enter the ranks of professional prize fighters, he is immediately tagged a second Benny Leonard. Which is usually enough of a handicap to squelch the most hearty youngster, for living up to the deeds of the great Benueh isn't being done these days. When young Al Singer emerged from the amateur ranks a few years ago he was no exception. Fight writers noticed the boy's aggressiveness and ring speed and mentioned him as a coming star. Also they said he was a second Benny Leonard. But after a nice string of victories, Young Singer ran into Ignacio Fernandez's knockout punch. While Singer lay on the canvas being counted out the fans gently trickled out of the arena saying, "There goes another second Benny Leonard." Many a kid would have folded up after suffering such an inglorious defeat as did Singer at the hands of the Filipino featherweight. But here is where Al proved he is nearer being a second Benny Leonard than was any Jewish boxer from New York's East Side since the great Benny himself. To show he wasn't the least bit nettled by being stopped by the little brown "Ignatz," he stepped out and won his next three fights, culminating his comeback with a two-round knockout over Featherweight Champion Andre Routs. Routs's title was not at stake in the fight as Singer was forced to come in above the 128-pound limit. Now Singer's followers are once more out of the doldrums and the talk of a second Benny Leonard is again going the rounds. Singer has shown the world that he doesn't know the word quit. He thinks that the knockout by Fernandez was the best thing that could have happened to him. It taught him caution and never to underestimate any guy that climbs through the hemp with him.

Great Britain Differs From U. S. Air Methods

LONDON, Aug. 20. (A)—Great Britain and the United States are in full agreement as to the importance of civil aviation, but in methods of developing their respective commercial air fleets have agreed on practically nothing.

Sir Sefton Branncker, director of civil aviation under the British air ministry, called attention to this in speaking before the American chamber of commerce here.

"In Great Britain," he said, "we insisted on strict regulation of commercial flying from the very first; in America your flyers did pretty much as they pleased until the industry was well advanced."

"Here, we looked upon the government subsidy as the only basis on which commercial aviation could be developed; you, on the other hand, have steadfastly refused to have anything to do with subsidies."

"Here, practically all the emphasis in civil aviation has been placed on passenger-carrying; in the United States the transportation of mail and express came first."

"Here, practically all of our commercial air traffic has been confined to daytime flights; in America, night flying long has been common."

"And yet, different as American and British theories on civil aviation have been all these years, a glance at the results achieved suggests that possibly both sides were right."

Liberty in the United States consists principally in the freedom to fuss because we have so little liberty.

Frenchmen Invented Car Using Lighting Gas In '83

ROUEN, Aug. 20. (A)—Two forgotten automobile pioneers, given credit for inventing the first explosion-engine car, have been brought to memory of the Automobile Club of Normandy.

Edouard Delamare-Deboutteville and Leon Maladain are asserted to have built and driven a car that ran with a motor that used ordinary lighting gas.

During the first run the rubber tube from the gas tank to the motor blew out, giving the amazed spectators a fright.

Later the two men rigged up a gasoline engine in the car, which was an old buggy, and it ran successfully for a long time.

Budapest No Longer Is Reno for Europe

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 20. (A)—Hitherto Budapest has been the Reno of Europe, where ill-assorted couples could obtain divorces literally while they waited. Hundreds of them flocked hither, especially from the Catholic countries, among them a next-to-nothing large proportion from Italy.

The judges did not place any difficulties in their way, showing themselves content with the simple plea of incompatibility of temper. The lines waiting for the judicial annulment became so long that a parliamentary deputy called the attention of the minister of justice to what he called a scandal.

Under new orders the judges of the divorce court now must call the parties together and endeavor to bring about a reconciliation. If that is not possible, they are given 30 days to consider whether they will resume wedded life.

Then they are called together again and, in case only one party appears, divorce is not granted at all. Should both appear at the hearing and still remain refractory against reconciliation, the judge names another and longer period during which they must reconsider their situation, and only after that term has expired without a forgiving spirit having been displayed in both partners does the tribunal finally grant a decree.

Women Urged To Help Own Sex In Business

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (A)—Patronage of women by women is advocated by Miss Lena Madess Phillips, honorary president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women.

She believes that if women are to obtain equal opportunity and equal pay with men they must help each other in a business way.

Before her retirement from the presidency in June, Miss Phillips urged a "business reciprocity" program. An experiment in this already has been tried by the Mississippi branch of the federation.

By the plan, each member of a group of women selects, from her acquaintances, five women whose product or skill she considers worthy of the patronage of her friends. She systematically promotes these for a period of three months.

Rhodes Brothers Install Brake Testing Device

A new device, which tells whether or not all four brakes have equal braking power, has been installed by Rhodes Bros. service station on Division street. This brake tester makes it possible to adjust each of the four brakes on an automobile so that they all work in unison.

"Most auto accidents," says Thurman Rhodes, proprietor, "are caused by faulty brakes, in the opinion of experts. Many sets of brakes are inefficient after the car is six months old, only because adjustments have been loosened, or because brake bands are worn. Then, when brakes are needed, they are not in a position to do the work that was intended of them; that of stopping the car."

It is understood that this machine is one of a dozen or so in all Arkansas. No other town in this section of the state has one, so far as has been learned.

Cherry Factories Pack 48 Millions In Day

LOVELAND, Colo., Aug. 19.—The cherries are ripe and coming factories are going full blast. There lies a day's work for a good statistician.

It remained for G. H. Thomson, to find that it took 160 cherries dropped one by one into a bucket to make a pound. Then it was found that factories in Loveland can or pack approximately 150 tons of cherries a day. By simple mathematics, it was found that 48,000,000 cherries a day are handled by the factories.

Honors for Producing Species Claimed Here

Hope not only lays claim to produce the world's largest melons, not to mention twins and triplets of the growth, but now this community steps out into the limelight with a peculiar species of fowl, half guinea and half chicken.

L. T. Hicks, Route 1, is the possessor of the hybrid. It was one of a setting of allegedly guinea eggs placed under a hen to hatch—and did. Now, every one knows anything knows it takes guinea eggs four weeks to hatch, while hen eggs hatch in a week less time. This particular egg hatched in three weeks, the hatch plainly being half. Sometimes its noise is that of a guinea. Sometimes a chicken. Its appearance is that of a chicken, its actions, quick, nervous and jerky, that of a guinea, and it bears as well the head-marks of a guinea.

Judge Earning Reputation As "Marryin' Justice"

Judge Bright, local justice of the Peace is earning himself something of a reputation as a marrying justice and if the run of business keeps up he'll have a record to equal that of any Texarkana officer who is reaping a harvest because of Texas' new marriage law.

Saturday night at 8:30 the Judge was called to his office where he performed the ceremony of Charlie Adair and Miss Pinkie London, both of Patmos, Sunday evening at five he again read a ceremony, this time for Odie Sims and Miss Mabel Easterling.

In Washington "Blackmail" Case

Alleged efforts to "extort" $270,000 from Mrs. C. C. Calhoun and her husband, Captain C. C. Calhoun (above), recently prominent Washingtonians who entertained the Prince of Wales on his last visit to this country, have resulted in the arrest of W. Clark Noble, internationally famed sculptor, his wife and three others in Washington on charge of conspiracy to blackmail. The Calhouns, charge that Noble and alleged conspirators asked for this amount under threats of revealing "one of the greatest scandals in history" if they refused to pay. Noble is shown below.
